

Guísela Pereira has dedicated herself professionally and academically to the fields of human rights and public policy for the past 10 years. She is a Chevening alumna (2019-2020) and holds a master's degree in Conflict Studies from the London School of Economics, as well as a bachelor's in International Relations from the University of São Paulo, in her native Brazil. Her research focuses on the narratives that fuel conflict, particularly the dynamics of gendered discourse and hate speech.

She is currently consulting for Conectas, one of Brazil's most prominent human rights NGOs, and has previously worked at São Paulo City Hall, the Brazilian Refugee Agency, and in higher education.